Stories of Student Success
and Institutional Transformation

The story of an institution is the story of the people, places, and communities that serve its students. Conversations about student success often focus solely on graduation rates or other benchmark data that can obscure the true impact that institutions, programs, and people have on the human beings served. ACCJC On The Move is about our journey to understand the distinct missions of the 137 institutions ACCJC serves, and the promising impactful practices changing lives inside and outside the classroom.

This week we are pleased to feature College of the Redwoods! Please take a look at the excerpt below, and check out www.accjconthemove.org for the full featured article.

College of the Redwoods

College of the Redwoods is a California public two-year institution serving nearly 4,000 students. Nestled in the heart of Humboldt County, College of the Redwoods' (CR) Eureka campus is an ecological treasure, with 270 acres of diverse ecosystems, including ponds, wetlands, riparian zones, and forests populated with a rich variety of fauna and flora.

What Dr. Powell found most impressive about College of the Redwoods is its beautiful campus and the integration of the physical beauty and resources of the campus and the tribal partnerships they have developed to support Native American student success and enrich the college's Native American language programs.
